Indigestion Cured!

I suffered for more than five years with indigestion, scarcely able to retain the simplest field on any stomach. The burning semention was almost intotable, and my whole system was deranged. I was wakeful guid could not steep, and contesponity more or less nervous all the time. I destined in felsel, and sufficed all the usual depression attendant upon this terrible disease. It is word, I was misserable. At last, fifting to find relief in anything sies, I commenced the use of fairly specific. I began to improve at once. The inseliction toned up the stomach, strengthened the digestive organs, and soon all that burning cented, and I could retain fool without difficulty. Now my behind it is good, and can call anything to the shape of food, and digest it without the facility of the shape of food, and digest it without the shape of food, and digest it without the field with the shape of food, and digest it without the field with the shape of food, and digest it without the statements. THE TELEPHONE SUIT SCANDAL A Friend of Attorney General Carland

Comes to His Defense. EDITOR NATIONAL REPUBLICAN: It was to be upposed after the close of the late presidential lection that the bitter partisanship which had isgusted the people at large with its infamous clication that the bitter partisanship which had disgusted the people at large with its latamous standers of personal character, used for party purposes, and met with such a general rebuke that it would hardly be attempted again in the present era of reformation, either to subserve the ends of party or any combination of Individual interests.

The attempt made to reflect on the honor and interrity of Mr. darfand as Attorney General is wholly injustifiable. The sum and substance of the charge against the gentleman is that because some years provious to the assumption of his present official position he had become honorably connected with a lawful company as its attorney, known as the Paulifective Telephone Company, and subsequently that company having desired to test the validity of the patents of the Ball telephone hy obtaining permission to bring the suit in the name of the United States, which Mr. Garland, as Attorney General, refused to grant on the ground of his being interested, he has, consequently, committed a grave crow, and is charged with the maladaministration of his office for refusing to do that, which would have been a malfesiance if he had done it.

But it has been maliciously whispered that Mr. Garland, at that time, had received in payment for his services a portion of the stock of the company. What if he had, was there anything dishonorable in that? Wherein them, lies the suspicion with which it is attempted to cloud his reputation as an honorable man? "Suspicion, whose own hard dealings teaches them to suspect the thoughts and acts of others."

"Suspicion, whose own hard dealings teaches them to suspect the thoughts and acts of others."

Let us search for the motive which induced this venomous stander. Did it originate on the part of the people to preserve the Department of Justice in its purity and integrity? Or would it not be most natural to suspens that those in the interest of the Bell Telephone Company would not be without their influence to prevent, if possible, an examination of the validity of its patents?

No unpreprinted mind can read the candid, frank, and unsophisticated statement of Mr. Gariand to the President without the convection that there was no attempt to conceal any of the facts of the case. This statement must be taken as wholly true, unless it can be contradicted, and if true, it exonerates Mr. Gariand from the slightest suspicion of any completely, either as senator or Attorney General, with the company which only rought to obtain a judicial opinion as to the validity of the patents of the Bell telephone. Surely there was no corruption or crime in this. This view is evidently sanetioned by the President in his letter to Hon. John Goode, solicitor general, suggesting that the precedent of first referring the case to the Interior Department should be followed before granting the permission to bring suit. The action taken by Mr. Goode is also not quositioned by the President. But is was considered safer to conform to the established, precedent, and therefore the auft was withdrawn, simply that the proceedings might be perfectly regular, and not, as stated by the Restuncas, that its withdrawal was "a concession that its institution was not justified."

Mr. Garland has cired numerous cases where previous Attorney General in addeed employed or consulted as coungel in causes which after previous Attorney Generals had been employed or causelled as coungel in causes which after.

Mr. Garland has cired numerous cases where previous Attorney Generals had been employed or consulted as counsel in causes which afterwards came before them officially, and which were invariably referred to the solicitor general, under the provisions of the law, in case of the disability of the Attorney General to act. Mr. Garland had refused to act in the present case, and during his absence, and without his knowledge, application was made to the solicitor general, who granted the petition on the certified records of the Interior Department.

The offense of Mr. Garland, then, seems to be, that as a senator of the United States he was employed as the attorney for this company, and received for his services a certain portion of its stock, years before he ever dreamed of becoming Attorney General. If this be malforance, there is not a sonator who has practiced before the Supreme Court, from the days of Clay and Webster to the present time, who would be free from the charge which has so and the discount of Mr. Garland.

The cases are numerous where judges of the wantonly attacked the character of Mr. Garland.

The cases are numerous where judges of the Supreme Court of the United states and other courts have recused themselves, and refused to sit in cases in which they had been employed as counsel and recoived fees, but no suspelion or reflection ever attached to their integrity for this reason.

On a careful review and unbiased examination of all the facts of this case, it is impossible to find the slightest irregularity or cause for impeaching the action or reintion of Mr. Garland with the Pau-Electric Telephone Company, and I will venture to say that there is not a lawyer at the bar of the Supreme Court of the United States or a judge on its bench who, on examination of the fines, would for a moment question or impuga the motives and action of Mr. Garland, either as a senator or Altorney General. The motive for this outery will, on reflection, appear patent on its tage.

Knowing your fearless and magnanimous character, Mr. Editor, personally, as well as a journalist, I am conscious you would not will-pully wrong your worst enemy, let alone east an unjust imputation on a public officer for a supposed offense under a misrepresentation and tortured construction, which, if committed at all, was antecedent to any of his official acts as Altoricey General.

Attorney General.
You were pleased to say in your article of the Illh instant, already alluded to, reflecting on the course of the Attorney General, that "maladministration of the Attorney General, that "maladministration of the Attorney General's office excites greater starm among the people and inflicts greater hort upon the government than a like state of things in any other executive department would do,"
This is true, and was fully exemplified by a like state of things in any other executive department would do."

This is true, and was fully exemplified by the Attorney General, whose name was Benjamin Harris Brewster, of "star route" memory. His decision in the celebrated Ottman case, in favor of returning the funds stolen from the treasury to the accused, by which his friend and associate in the star route cases. Mr. feering Bliss, was greatly benefited, startled the people by the enormity of the act, and blackened the Department of Justice with degradation and disgrace.

So far as Mr. Garland is concerned, there need be no alarm felt among the people, for his whole life is without reproach, and gives the assurance that the Department of Justice will be preserved in all its purity and integrity. Proverties say "A whisperer separateth chief friends," but I am mistaken in the character of the President if the whispers of calumny could for a morent be entertained against a man of spotless honor.

A Gambling Club Raided. The case of William McCaffrey, of the Olympia Club, which meets in the rear of his cigar store, 1119 Seventh street, was tried in the cigar store, 1119 Seventh street, was tried in the police court yesterday. The police testified to finding a game of poker in full blast at the time of the raid. Levi J. Balley testified to being a member of the club. He had played there for money, and had bought chips from the defendant. He informed the police because the club had refused him admission to the rooms. McCaffrey told him that he had been expelled. Judge Snell sined McCaffrey 50 and one day in jail. An appeal was noted.

The collector of customs at New York has notified the Secretary of the Treasury that suit for £50,000 damages has been brought against him, and asks that the district attorney at New York be instructed to defend him. The suit is for filegal arrest and detention, and is brought by Mr. Bencke, an immigrant who recently arrived at New York from Switzerland. Mr. Bencke is a pardoned convict, and when he arrived at New York he was kept under surveillance until his exact status under the law prohibiting the landing of convicts, insane persons, Ac., could be determined. It was thought at the time that his partion was conditional on his emigrating to the United States, but this was subsequently learned to be incorred. The case was referred to the Attorney General, and he gave an opinion that the perdon wiped out the offense, and as it was unconditional there was no legal objection to the landing of hence &, who was thereupon placed at liberty. The case in its present aspects will be referred to the solicitor of the treasury for such action as he may deem proper. Collector Hedden Sued.

gages. It is thought that the polition will be ready for presentation to court in a few days.

The examination in the injunction cases of the south Pennsylvania and Beech Creek railroads was resumed in Philadelphia yesterdays. Wm. Thaw, a director of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company and view president of the Pennsylvania Company, and Thomas N. Loomis, an assistant engineer of the South Pennsylvania Company, and Thomas N. Loomis, an assistant engineer of the South Pennsylvania cond, were examined. A sworm statement of tem George Magrue, the contracting superintendent of the Beech Creek road, was submitted. At this point the altorites general stated that the commonwealth would rest its case, reserving the right, however, to apply to the court for an extension of time. The hearing was then adjourned.

When in the east recently, President Moffatt of the Benver and Rio Grande was quoted as saying that the road will be taken out of the heads of the receiver in about two weeks and sold and be entirely reorganized under a new management. Mr. Moffatt has been questioned concerning this statement, and ho says that "the report is to a certain extent incorrect. What I said was that all the parties interests, namely, the first mortgage bondholders of ear trust certificates and Rio Grande parties interests, namely, the first mortgage bondholders of ear trust certificates and Rio general stockholders have agreed upon at basis of settlement which will be perfected in about two weeks time. After that in accordance with the terms of the mortgage, it will has been questioned on the property. The new campany will probably be fully organized by the lat of January, but it will not come into possession of the road much before the lat of May.
